Entrance Test-(2017-18)

Class-XII

Time : 30 Min.

Subject - English

M.M. 20

Section - A (Reading)

1. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow :

- (i) People stared, laughed and pointed at me as I walked past. My vision was limited but it was obvious that all eyes were on me. I could rest assured it wasn't simply paranoia - when a guy in a mismatched punk outfit yelled, "Whats with the gigantic penguin?"
- (ii) I was the penguin; or rather, I was dressed as one. Those who knew me would have been shocked by how willingly I accepted the role. Before the mascot job I had felt uncomfortable in social situations, especially those where I was the centre of attention.
- (iii) Social anxiety, sometimes referred to as extreme shyness, has been my biggest malady and has followed me all my life. In kindergarten I refused to play with the other kids. I hid behind my mom when an adult entered her room. Later, I wouldn't raise my hand in class for fear of saying the wrong thing. As I grew up, no one understood why I was so shy in front of people I had known for years. I preferred remaining silent over saying anything that could potentially be interpreted as worthy of criticism. Daily I heard the question, "Why are you so quiet?" Instead of questioning it myself, I adopted the role of the 'quiet' girl, making it part of my persona.
- (iv) Not until I started college did I realize that many others suffer the same problem. On the university website I discovered a support group that dealt with shyness and anxiety, and decided to join. At the first meeting about ten of us, all young women, introduced ourselves and spoke of our anxieties. For the first time in years, I felt like I wasn't different from everyone else.
- (v) Kim Maertz, the psychologist who led the group, taught us to monitor our thoughts before, during and after an anxiety - provoking event. I was shocked by the constant negativity swirling in my mind. For example, before entering public situations, I automatically thought, "I can never think of interesting things to say." It was as if a naysayer sat huddled in the recesses of my subconscious affecting all areas of my life if I thought a course required too for it. Through support group I realized I was tired of letting anxiety limit my life.
- (vi) A couple of years later I was offered a job as a mascot assistant for the local mall. Then one day I was given a chance to be a mascot. Soon a penguin became my new alter ego. I was comfortable with the huge feet and the bulky body. Wearing the suit involved donning many layers of clothing topped by a fur ~ lined coat and several once I started waddling, flapping my wings, dancing and acting out skits. And the weight of the suit contradicted the lightness I felt while wearing it - I was free to have fun without first gauging people's potential responses. I didn't care what other people thought.
- (vii) Over time, the changes I made to get in the character began to permeate my real life. People often think of therapy in clinical terms, something done in a psychologist's office. But 'exposure therapy' involves putting oneself in uncomfortable situation over and over again. It can be done anywhere and for me, being a penguin allowed me to explore a side of myself I hadn't realized was dying to come out. Being a penguin indeed freed me.
